BOOMING OF GUNS IS HEARD ON HUNGJAO AND RUBICON ROADS

Heavy Artillery Firing Near Tsingpu Indicates Arrival Of Fresh Chihli Reinforcements; Foreign Authorities Taking Precautionary Measures

Fighting reached within less than ten miles of Shanghai early this morning after Kiangsu troops had forced their way along Soochow Creek to a point almost due south of Nanziang. At 2 o'clock this morning 500 Shantung infantrymen belonging to the command of General Chwan Tse-ping were rushed from Shanghai to attempt to stop the advance.

Beginning at about six o'clock and lasting for approximately an hour there was heavy firing of artillery and machine guns in the vicinity of Huangtu and possibly on Soochow Creek between Huangtu and Tsingpu. After seven o'clock the firing was intermittent but machine-gun fire and flashes from the artillery could be both seen and heard from the outskirts of the Settlements and specially in the vicinity of Hungjao Road and the Rubicon Road.

In view of the fact that Kiangsu is reported to have received heavy reinforcements from Hsusuchow and Pukow it was thought in Shanghai that the heavy firing indicated the beginning of a new assault upon the Chekiang forces in the Huangtu sector. Because of this, it was reported early this morning that precautionary measures have been adopted for the protection of the Settlements by the Consular Body and the foreign naval authorities in case the battle lines are brought nearer the Settlements than they were yesterday.

Confirmation

On information gathered from the local Chinese police and military authorities, THE CHINA PRESS published a report on Sunday regarding an attempt made by Kiangsu spies to seize the Kiangnan Arsenal. One of the morning papers here considered the report "overdrawn" while another did not hesitate in saying that there was "no truth whatsoever in yesterday's scare report that Kiangsu men in motor lorries tried to blow up the arsenal."

In confirming the report yesterday, Colonel Lu Yung chien, chief of the Woosung and Shanghai Constabulary, authorised the CHINA PRESS to publish the following statement:

"Your report on the attempted attack on the Kiangnan Arsenal is materially correct. According to the official report filed with me by Mr. Tu Chung-tsao, Chief of the Second Police Precinct within which the arsenal is located, the number of men captured was 23. The motor car in which the ringleaders were found carried a municipal licence number of one of the settlements. The total number of arms seized was 11, of which three were pistols and eight rifles. There were also more than 1,500 rounds of ammunition for both the rifles and pistols, and 24 bugles and other equipments of war. The captured men have been handed over to Colonel Liu Yung-sung, commander of the Precautionary Forces, for examination."

In connection with the attempted attack, three Chinese news agencies also carried reports. The Kuo Wen News Agency said:

"Saturday afternoon, over 20 outlaws in different motor-cars headed their direction towards the arsenal. The guards on duty became suspicious of their movements and asked them to halt. The bandits drew their guns and apparently intended to fire. The guards fired first. Realising their danger, the outlaws turned round and fled but those who had already dismounted from their cars were caught, five of them being taken prisoner. One car was also taken and a quantity of arms and bombs was also seized. They were handed over to the Court Martial for trial. It is learned that they were shot on the same night in accordance with the regulations promulgated under Martial law."

The Kung Ping News Agency had the following report:

"Since the outbreak of the war, Tuchun Chi of Kiangsu has sent many spies, armed with large quantities of money, to incite local rowdies to disturb the peace. Saturday afternoon at about 7 o'clock seven of these in civilian clothes drove towards the Kiangnan Arsenal. As they stopped in front of the gate, the suspicion of the guards was aroused and an attempt was made to capture them. The invaders throw a bomb, which did not explode. All the outlaws were caught and more than 10 guns and a number of bombs were found in the cars. Several forged military passes were also found. They were immediately sent to the Military Governor's Yamen at Lunghua for trial."

The China News Agency had a report similar to that of Kung Ping.

WAR HERE MAY DELAY FLIGHT OF MAJ. ZANNI

Postponement Or Change Of Route Now Being Considered

BY UNITED PRESS

Tokio, September 6.—The plans of Major Zanni, Argentinian world aviator, may be changed because of the war which is being fought around Shanghai.

The advisability of flying directly from Shanghai over the route taken by the American flyers is being considered, or it is possible that the flight may be delayed until conditions are more nearly normal.

Flying northward from Shanghai is deemed to be hazardous at this time.

Money Market Here Fluctuates Because Of Anxiety Abroad

The Shanghai money market fluctuated violently for a time yesterday due apparently to the anxiety created abroad by the Shanghai war situation. The sterling rate fluctuated from 3-4½ to 3-5 and the gold dollar rate from 74 7-8 to 75 1-16 while the yen rate slumped from 55 to 54 3-8. There was a general selling of gold to buy silver in the international market, but in the domestic market the native interest rate was lower showing somewhat more confidence or adjustent to the war situation. It is understood that there has been some talk in native banking circles regarding a moratorium on account of the war situation and one of the large foreign firms has reports from agents in the interior that some of the belligerent generals have under contemplation the issuance of war notes, but these reports could not be confirmed.

Accuses Soviet Of Plotting In China

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 6.—A diplomat discussing the situation in China with a representative of the Sunday Times, accuses the Soviet of plotting for the bolshevisation of China by lending support, overt or covert, to the various fomenters of anarchy. He declares that if things are allowed to drift any longer, the extension of the civil war in China will kill foreign and British trade for years. Japan and America's reciprocal distrust of each other's motives have possibly tended to prevent either assuming the lead in facilitating Chinese reunion, and, if so, Great Britain should boldly assume the lead.

SENTIMENT FOR INTERVENTION IS GAINING GROUND

London Paper Sees Growing Feeling In America And Britain

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 8.—The Daily Telegraph's Diplomatic Correspondent says that the movement in favor of the Powers pacificially intervening in China is rapidly gaining ground both in America and in Great Britain.

The Daily News says it is our duty to take a share with the other European Powers in defence of the foreign colony of Shanghai.

The Times states that there has been a demand on the London market for special insurance on property in China against risk of damage by war and civil commotion. The property covered is mostly in warehouses of the leading cities, notably Shanghai. A good deal of business was done a few days' ago on a basis of a three percent premium, but five percent was quoted in some quarters towards the end of the week. The rate for the month remained at thirty shillings percent.

Peking, Sept. 5.—Further than the transfer of some of General Feng Yu-hsiang's machine guns and men to Ma Chang on Sunday last no important movements of troops in North China are reported. Some of General Feng's men are said to have started for Tungchow, whence they will proceed to Hsifengkow.

The 15th Division, under the command of General Peng Shou-hsin, is still in the north. One brigade is at Chanchow, where Peng has his headquarters, the remainder of the division being at Liu Shouying. In accordance with the neutral zone agreement, there are no Chinese troops at Shanhsaiwan.

CHEKIANG GUARD REMOVED FROM JESSFIELD ROAD

Police Halt Searchers For Kiangsu Deserters Near Railroad

Efforts of Chekiang armed guards to conduct searches on Settlement roads were quickly halted by police of the Bubbling Well Station Saturday night.

At 8 o'clock Saturday night, Trooper Havildar 506 reported to the station that he had seen a guard of Chinese soldiers at the railroad crossing on Jessfield Road searching all pedestrians who sought to enter the Settlement.

A police party was sent to the scene, and found a guard of six, with an officer in command. The officer explained to the police that reports had been received at Chekiang headquarters that Kiangsu soldiers were discarding their uniforms and attempting to get into the Settlement, and that therefore the guard had been stationed at the railroad crossing with instructions to search all Chinese who attempted to enter the Settlement.

The police pointed out to the officer that the road is a Settlement road and that such searches could therefore not be permitted. Accordingly, the guard withdrew. Two Sikh officers were stationed at the scene throughout the night to insure that there would be no further searching on Settlement roads.

LIUHO GETS HARD BLOW; CHEKIANG CLAIMS GAINS IN YIHSIN AND KATING

Huangtu Position Consolidated As Chihli Men Arrive; Son Of Chekiang Tupan Confirms Report Of Hostile Attitude Of Chang Tso-lin Towards Peking

The Chihli Navy participated in the Kiangsu-Chekiang War for the first time yesterday when one of its gunboats, Ying Jui, fired several shots at Liuhokow, but did little damage to the Chekiang forces, it was stated at the Lunghua Yamen at midnight.

Following the report that heavy Chihli reinforcements were being rushed to Quinsan, the Chekiang forces in Huangtu consolidated yesterday the new position that they gained on Sunday.

Fierce fighting continued througout the day in Liuho. In the morning, Kiangsu troops bombarded it from the top of the City Temple of a village two li away with machine guns. But the Chekiang forces held it with renewed vigor. Twelve machine guns and one battalion of artillery were sent to the front. The clash here is believed to be the hardest yet seen in this region.

Fighting was commenced in Kating early yesterday. After a serious clash the Kiangsu men were forced to withdraw.

From Changhsin, the Chekiang army advanced and is reported to have reached a village about 7 miles from Yihsin.

This sums up the developments in the Kiangsu-Chekiang war situation yesterday, according to news reports gathered from the local military authorities and war correspondents.

To strengthen the position of Woosung, two battalions of the 37th regiments were despatched to the forts. It was reported that the Fukien fleet, headed by the Cruiser Hai Yung, was anchored at 12 miles south of Woosung, while the Cruiser Haishou and the Gunboat Yung Chi were stationed along side of the Forts.

Serious fighting was also staged in Kating yesterday. The Chekiang side was manned by the 24th mixed brigade under Yang Hua-chao, while the Kiangsu army consisted of the Second Mixed Brigade. After three hours continued engagement, the Kiangsu forces were repulsed towards the west. Over 200 were captured together with a large quantity rifles and ammunition. Chekiang wounded numbered about 30. One of their big guns was smashed.

The 37th regiment of the 10th division arrived in Shanghai North Station from Kashing at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. One of their battalions was motored to Liuho with their arms in the afternoon at 4 o'clock. These

MUKDEN FORCES STARTING WEST, PEKING REPORT

Foreign Residents Of Capital Plan To Evacuate Peitaiho Early

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 4.—Some excitement was caused in Peking last evening by the report that Marshal Chang Tso-lin had resolved on an early move into Chihli, and several foreign residents intend to bring their families back to Peking from Peitaiho earlier than they had intended, in view of the danger of traffic on the Peking-Mukden railway being suspended by the passage of troops.

According to Chinese reports the Mukden forces at Chinchow have begun to march in a westerly direction. Two yings of infantry artillery and the 27th [illegible] Division are said to be at Shanhaikwan, and two yings of infantry are at Chunghouso, fifteen li from Shanhaiwan.

According to reports received from Mukden by mail Marshal Chang Tso-lin has sent General Chang Chao-lo (Commandant of the Chinchow garrison) to supervise commissariat and transport work between Mukden and Chinchow, and General Chang Tso-hsiang (Commandant of the 27th Fengtien Division) to Lihsihsien, near the Jehol border, to supervise bandit suppression.

Chekiang Branded Rebels In Mandate By Peking

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 8.—The text of the Government's punitive mandate issued against General Lu Yung-hsiang is as follows:

"A telegraphic report dated September 4 from Marshal Chi Hsieh-yuan, Inspector-General of Kiangsu, Anhui and Kiangsi, reported that Lu Yung-hsiang, the rebellious Tupan of Chekiang, had revolted against the Central Government and had rallied outlawed elements to his aid. The report further stated that the province of Kiangsu, owing to its geographical proximity, had been obliged to make defensive plans in order to keep the provincial frontiers intact and to maintain peace among the people, but that Lu with the assistance of Ho Feng lin had ordered their rebellious troops to make an attack on the Kiangsu defensive forces.

"Marshal Chi also reported that the rebels issued a circular telegram on September 3 openly revolting against the Central Government, adding that early on the morning of September 4 the rebellious troops commenced firing in the vicinity of Quinsan in the hope of inflicting an unexpected blow on the Kiangsu forces. Marshal Chi stressed the point that Kiangsu aimed at defending its own frontiers and had always stood for peace, but that he would do his utmost to ward off and attack in order to reach the goal of maintaining peace among the people. Marshal Chi pointed out that the rebels had committed very great crimes which could not be tolerated by the laws of the nation, and he also petitioned for a decisive policy and a mandate to attack the rebels for the purpose of upholding the laws.

SIGNS OF UNREST

"Similar petitions have been received from Marshals Wu Pei-fu, Wang Chen-ping, Hsiao Yao-nan, Wang Huai-ching and Feng Yu-hsiang.

"There have been signs of unrest everywhere in the past few years and all industries have been hampered. On top of this situation a large part of the nation is affected at present by flood and calamities and starving people are awaiting help.

"Since my assumption of office my sole desire has been that the people may have a rest after passing through all these miseries. Although there were differences of views among provinces it was my hope that they would gradually be brought to sincere co-operation. In spite of the fact that the rebellious Tupan and his adherents had on more than one occasion disclosed their intention to revolt I ordered my commanders to hold their defensive frontiers and not to start war. This generous policy I pursued in the hope of inducing the rebels to feel regret at their faults. To my surprise they have dared to break the peace of the nation openly against the popular desire for peace. In order to suppress the outlaws and pacify the people I no longer can allow them to continue their disturbing intentions and bring pain and suffering to the people. Lu Yung-hsiang and Ho Feng lin are hereby relieved of their official posts and honors. Marshal Chi Hsieh-yuan is instructed to direct his forces

CANTON CORPS STILL FAILS TO GET ITS RIFLES

New Conditions Put Forward By Dr. Sun Prior To Release Of Arms

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, Sept. 2.—The leaders of the Canton merchant volunteer movement in Canton are in a very embarrassing position as a result of an alleged breach of faith on the part of Dr. Sun Yat-sen. Dr. Sun agreed to release in return for a $500,000 special war contribution the consignment of arms seized on the steamer Hav by the authorities, but there is no sign of the merchant volunteers getting back one single rifle.

The merchants signed the preliminary agreements and called off the general strike, but now the authorities have put forward new conditions, including a pledge by the merchants that the arms to be released would never be used to oppose Dr. Sun's mercenary forces. The merchants, however, want to be free to act in self-defense, for example, in the event of the looting of shops by troops or of interference with the rights of the people.

The officers of the volunteers are having a difficult time with the younger members of the corps, who are much excited over the execution without trial by the Civil Governor and the Chief of Police of Major Chau King-shin of the 9th Regiment of the Volunteers, on August 29, after the signatures to the preliminary peace agreement between the volunteers and the authorities had been attached. The parties came to an agreement at six o'clock in the evening and Major Chau was executed at seven o'clock the same day.

The elder members feel that they must forbear oppression a little longer, as at present they have everything to lose and nothing to gain by permitting the younger element to engage in a conflict with the so-called Red Army.

Flood Of Wounded Into Settlement Continues

Scenes in various parts of the settlement yesterday and particularly at the Chinese Isolation Hospital at the corner of Thibet road and Avenue Edward VII, dispelled the last lingering doubts of Shanghai cynics and scoffers as to the close proximity of a real war.

Ambulances carrying full quotas of severely wounded men, and floating the flag of the Red Cross, sped from the front lines to the various hospitals in and near the Settlement. One noticed in the late afternoon at Nanking road and the Bund was filled to capacity with men who had received emergency treatment at the field dressing stations but whose gory appearance was a shocking sight in the midst of the normal life of Shanghai.

Hundreds of Chinese lined either side of Thibet road facing the Chinese Isolation Hospital and that ordinarily wide street, one of the broadest in Shanghai, was kept clear for traffic only by the most strenuous work on the part of the police. On the second floor of the hospital, returned heroes, slightly wounded about the head by bits of shrapnel, or with flesh wounds which did not prevent their moving about, satisfied the Chineese love of show by keeping themselves, their bandages and their uniforms on exhibition at the windows all day. At intervals motor trucks bearing fresh consignments of wounded men from the battle lines drove up and deposited their human burdens at the hospital. Various transfers of serious cases were made to other hospitals and whole scene was one of feverish, war-time activity.

The number of wounded now being treated at Red Cross hospitals in and about Shanghai is well over 400. Perhaps half that number is being cared for at the Naval Hospital at Woosung. The Catholic Hospital at Nantao yesterday acceded to requests of the Red Cross and is providing accommodations for wounded soldiers. The various hospitals here now caring for casualties are as follows: the Nantao General Hospital, the Chinese Isolation Hospital, the Zikawei road hospital, the Red Cross hospital, the Tientsin road hospital, the Paoshan road plant of the Commercial Press and the Naval Hospital at Woosung.

The number of hospitals is pitiably inadequate when one notes the fact that an authoritative, foreign estimate yesterday placed the wounded on both sides, so far, at 3,000. The source is authority for the statement that the number of deaths so far, on both sides, is slightly in excess of 1,000.

The former communication from the Ministers and the Government's reply, which merely said that the Kiangsu military authorities had given assurances that they should do their best for the protection of foreign lives and property, were made verbally.

Liuho Gets Hard Blow; Lu Gains In Kating And Yihsin

will take the offensive against Tachang today, it is reported. Another was despatched to Huangtu.

General Lu Hsiao-chia, son of General Lu Yung-hsiang, has arrived in Shanghai from Mukden and is guest of General Ho Feng-lin at Lunghua. According to young General Lu Marshal Chang Tso-lin has already mobilised his forces, which were reorganised into six divisions, and were to be marched to the Great Wall yesterday. He expects to leave here for Hangchow today.

According to the Dah Tong News Bureau, Chi Hsieh-yuan has telegraphed to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, demanding that a protest be lodged with the diplomatic corps for disallowing Admiral Tu Shih-kwei's fleet to fire upon Lunghua and the region of Szetseling (near Liuho).

The same agency states that Wu Pei-fu has reported to Tsao Kun that he had ordered Ma Lai-ling, commander of the third Honan Mixed Brigade to send one regiment to Pukow so that the regiment in Pukow can proceed to Nanking and reinforce Chi.

It was reported yesterday afternoon that the Nanking and Fukien navies had joined forces yesterday morning and are now stationed in the Yangtsze River north of the Woosung forts adjacent to the village of Liuho which is located about a mile and a half inland. The sound of artillery firing which was heard in the Settlements late yesterday afternoon was first thought to have been a naval conflict, but this could not be confirmed. It was rather thought that the firing came from the fighting in the vicinity of Liuho which apparently was in progress all day. It was also reported that the Nanking General has landed troops from junks on the Yangtsze in the vicinity of Liuho.

PAGE ONE

One hundred eighty wounded were brought back to Shanghai from the various fighting fronts yesterday, bringing the total number of wounded under the care of the Chinese Red Cross to about 350. All the three Red Cross Hospitals, the General Red Cross Hospital on Avenue Haig, the Tientsin Road Hospital and the Isolation Hospital on Thibet Road were filled to capacity yesterday, and four more were established by Drs. W. S. New and W. L. New.

The fourth Red Cross Hospital will be established at the Staff's Club of the Commercial Press in Chapei, the fifth at the Shanghai Hospital in Nantao, capable of accomodating 40 beds, the sixth at the Industrial School at West Gate, providing 20 beds and the 7th at the St. Luke's Hospital, whose staff has offered their services to the Red Cross together with their equipments. Sixty beds will be available here.

Since Dr. W. L. New and his staff have been considerably overworked since the beginning of the war a week ago, serious operations from now on will be performed alternatively at the Red Cross General Hospital and the St. Luke's Hospital. To further relieve the situation, Drs. Hiltner and Swan, Dr. James L. Maxwell and Dr. W. W. Peter have offered their services to the Red Cross. They will officiate at the hospitals without wearing the Red Cross Uniform.

A temporary matshed is being erected in front of the Red Cross General Hospital in anticipation of further congestion of the wounded. This will accomodate about 200 patients. At eight places, Shanghai will be able to handle about 1,000 wounded, Dr. W. S. New said.

Regarding the outport Red Cross units, Dr. H. S. Chiao is officiating at Changchow with a sub-unit in Quinsan while Dr. Z. S. Nee is heading the unit looking after Tachang and Nanziang. Wusih and Soochow have Red Cross units, but are not functioning, according to reports at hand.

To facilitate the transportation of wounded soldiers from Liuho, five more motor ambulances were secured by Dr. W. S. New. The Commercial Press and International Recreation Club each contributed the use of a truck yesterday.

FEARS AT HOME FOR SAFETY OF RESIDENTS HERE

Flood Of Cables Shows War Reports Are Causing Serious Concern

That the military and political situation in the Shanghai area is causing serious concern abroad is indicated in Reuter dispatches from London and in private cables which were received in Shanghai yesterday by firms and individuals from their home connections in the United States, Great Britain and elsewhere. Steamships in China waters received wireless messages from the United States making inquiry regarding the safety of passengers and in some shipping offices inquiries were received regarding the advisability of sending cargo in this direction.

In order to allay fears which evidently exist abroad for the safety of Shanghai some of the foreign consulates are reported to have sent reassuring cables to their home governments regarding safety of this city and it is understood that the foreign chambers of commerce are also sending messages of reassurance regarding the safety of lives and property in the Shanghai area.

ARMED ROBBERS TALK TOO MUCH; NOW IN CUSTODY

Five Are Arrested As Plans Are Discussed In Tea-Shop

Five men believed to be armed robbers are in the custody of the Settlement police as a result of conducting their planning a bit too publicly.

A report was made to the Wayside police Saturday night that a gang of men were planning a robbery over their tea-cups in a tea shop at 1477 Tongshan Road.

Detective Sub-Inspector MacDermott and a squad of detectives visited the place and arrested one Chinese whom they found in possession of a .52 caliber revolver, fully loaded, and three extra rounds of ammunition. Later, another man, who had escaped in the raid, was taken into custody on East Yuhang Road. He also was in possession of a fully loaded revolver.

On information obtained subsequently, the French police arrested three other men in a house on Rue de Saigon and turned them over to the Settlement police.

The five men are said to have been implicated in a robbery at 1677 East Seward Road on August 25.

Chefoo, Sept. 8.—The court case before the British Consular Court against the Chief Officer of the Fausang, who, in an endeavour to quell a quarrel between some Chinese passengers, is alleged to have produced a pistol in so threatening a way, that one of the Chinese ran to the side of the ship and, jumping overboard, was drowned, was dismissed today.

to suppress these rebels at his discretion.

ALL POSSIBLE AID

"The provinces of Kiangsu and Chekiang are noted as the center of culture and wealth. The psychology of their people favors peace. They want reunification. The Chekiang people have no reason to complain and are now suffering for no cause. That is what pains me most.

"The commanders of the various Government forces should do their utmost to restore as soon as possible all places now under the influence of the rebels. It is my hope that the campaign may be terminated soon so that the people may resume business.

"Local authorities should spare no efforts to protect the property and lives of natives and of foreigners. Not a single case of disturbance should be permitted.

"There was originally no line of demarcation between Shanghai and Chekiang and the way should be open to rebels who surrender.

"A settlement should be quickly obtained.

"Let this be known to the whole nation."

Peking, Sept. 7.—The punitive mandate against Lu Yung-hsiang was issued today.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 7.—The punitive mandate enumerating General Lu Yung-hsiang's crimes, and ordering armed force to be used to bring General Lu to submission to the authority of the Central Government, was promulgated after having been discussed at a special Cabinet Meeting this afternoon.

The communique states that the Government at first hesitated to issue the mandate, but now has done so because General Lu openly revolted against the Central Government. The mandate has in view the hastening of the end of the civil war.

The mandate, quotes a telegram from Chih Sueh-yuan of September 4 in which it is mentioned that Lu Yung-hsiang on September 3 issued a circular telegram denouncing the Central Government and opened fire on Kiangsu troops on September 4. It says that President Tsao Kun received telegrams from Generals Wu Pei-fu, Wang Chen-ping, Feng Yu-hsiang, Hsiao Yao-nan, and Wang Huai-ching drawing attention to the necessity of punishing Lu Yung-hsiang.

General Lu's actions as reported in these telegrams show that he is a rebel and disturber of the peace. The President has therefore decided to dismiss Lu Yung-hsiang and Ho Feng-lin, who are deprived of their official ranks and orders.

General Chih Hseh-yuan is ordered to send an expeditionary force against Lu, while all the military officers in that region are instructed to cooperate with General Chi for the restoration of peace and order, and also the protection of foreign lives and property.

The mandate goes on to say that the President's chief object is to maintain peace and pacify the people.

Four Home Runs Mark Final Ball Game At Race Course

Gallopers Swat Unions' Hurler For 11 Hits And As Many Runs; Season Will Be Resumed On Pioneer Field

In their final game at the Race Course on Sunday afternoon with the Japanese Unions the Gallopers slammed out four circuit clouts as their farewell to the favorite grounds. The final score was 11-0 in favor of the locals.

John Scott was on the mound for the Shanghai boys and allowed but one hit to the opposing Japanese while he and his teammates banged out some eleven hits for as many runs. In the second frame which was the biggest for the Gallopers they scored six runs with the help of two home runs. In this session Claire started the rampage by knocking a circuit to the Cricket Club, he was followed by singles from Scott and Hyde and a second later Dadler filled the bases to capacity when he was admitted by an error. "Buck" Taylor then went to the plate with his favorite war club and lined out a four base wallop down right field which left the bases clean and marked a six on the score board.

The Gallopers returned to bat in the third inning and helped themselves of two more home runs for Scott slammed out one and managed to circle the bases in his usual fast time. Next came the Maloney who leisurly parked one in the Lawn Bowls green and walked around the bags. This was all the scoring for that frame needless to say sufficient.

The fourth inning saw the conclusion of the three inning rally when the locals crossed the plate three times making a total of eleven runs. In this frame Maloney attempted to make another homer but was very well satisfied with a three bagger.

The game was scheduled for only seven innings however the Gallopers needed but three to pile up their heavy score.

This game was the last to be played on the Race Course diamond and the Gallopers will shift their paraphernalia this week to the Pioneer Field. Carpenters are already busy tearing down the stands and in a few days the place will look quite barren to the average baseball fan.

However games will be played on the new ground in French town until cold weather interferes.

FRENCH LOSE TO AUSTRALIANS IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

Win Right To Play Challenge Round With American Team

(Reuter's American Service)

Boston, Sept. 6.—Australia has defeated France in the final round of the Davis Cup Competition, thus earning the right to meet the United States in the challenge round.

Patterson today beat Borotra, 6-1 6-3.

There remains one singles match to be played.

The Frenchman scored brilliantly in the first set on Patterson's service. In the second Patterson quickly took the lead in spite of the utmost efforts of his opponent, who slipped and slid on the soft court.

The third set was an exciting fight. Borotra made a very plucky attempt to save the game but was finally routed.

The match, which was played in perfect weather, lasted 54 minutes.

Boston, Sept. 6.—Lacoste beat O'Hara Wood in the last match of the final round of the Davis Cup Competition. Australia has thus won three games to France's two.

The score was 8-10, 6-1, 6-1, 7-5.

Wood started well, repeatedly breaking through the Frenchman's service. Lacoste's subsequent victory was mainly due to the tiredness of his opponent, who was unable to maintain the terrific pace. Lacoste was in his best form in the fourth set, producing strokes of deadly accuracy.

BERLIN NOT TO SEEK TO EVADE GUILT IN WAR

Herr Marx Abandons Intention To Issue Proclamation On Treaty

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 6.—Herr Marx, the German Chancellor, recently wrote to M. Herriot stating that public opinion in Germany compelled him to issue a proclamation to the world repudiating Germany's war guilt, similar to his statement in the Reichstag.

M. Herriot instructed the French Ambassador in Berlin to point out the deplorable effect that such a pronouncement would produce on the world, and most of the German journalists at Geneva telegraphed Herr Marx in this sense.

Herr Marx has now abandoned his intention to issue the proclamation.

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Sept. 7.—The French Ambassador, acting upon instructions from M. Herriot, has informed Herr Maltzahn, the Foreign Under-Secretary, that despatch of Germany's Note disclaiming responsibility for the war would at present create a bad impression in France. Therefore it would not be to Germany's interests to send it.

Herr Maltzahn admitted that the Government was adverse to sending the Note but it felt bound by its pledge to the German Nationalists who had made the Note one of the conditions of their support of the Dawes Agreement.

It is understood that Herr Marx and Dr. Stresemann, who are on a holiday, have been asked whether the Note should be sent to the Allies or not.

Lord D'Abernon, the British Ambassador, has not yet been instructed to make representations similar to those made by the French Ambassador.

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Sept. 7.—In connection with the question of Germany's war guilt, the Geneva correspondent of Vorwaerts states that the news that the German Government intended to send a Note to the Allies repudiating her guilt has caused general stupefaction, and that Mr. Ramsay MacDonald telegraphed warning the German Government against committing such an act of folly, and that Dr. Branting and Dr. Nansen acted similarly. The journal says that a high British personage declared that if Germany did this then everything would be finished. Apparently the warnings have not been without effect for up to the present the German Government has not sent the Note and has not decided whether it will be sent at all though omission to send it will arouse wrath among the German Nationals.

Hope Ulster Will Give Consent To Boundary Parley

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 7.—It is hoped in some quarters that the Ulster Government may be influenced to favor agreeing to appoint a boundary commissioner by the action of Mr. Balfour publishing a letter from Lord Birkenhead, one of the negotiators of the Anglo-Irish Treaty. The latter wrote Mr. Balfour on March 1922, strongly contending that the boundary clause meant that the Boundary Commission was intended to make only minor adjustments, and saying it was inconceivable that any competent or honest arbitrator could take opposite view. Thirty members of Parliament of all parties are touring the boundary of the region at the present time and investigating the situation.

TEXT OF NOTE OF SOVIET ON RUSS LEGATION

Karakhan Tells Of Discussion With Japanese And U.S. Ministers

(Reuter's Service)

Peking, Sept. 5.—The following is the text of the Note which was sent on August 25 by the Soviet Ambassador (Mr. Karakhan) to the British Minister (Sir Ronald Macleay) in connection with the transfer of the former Russian Legation premises and which the British Minister agreed with Mr. Karakhan to withhold from publication for the time being:

"In a Note under date of August 18th of this year, His Excellency the Japanese Minister informed me that the Diplomatic Representatives of Eight Powers co-signatory to the Protocol of 1901 have decided to hand over to the Ambassadors of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics the former Russian Legation and the keys thereof, and that they have appointed the Netherlands Charge d'Affaires, the Jonkheer W. F. Roell, to represent them in this matter. At the same time His Excellency Mr. Yoshizawa requested me to name the person I would delegate to take over the Soviet Embassy and the keys.

"By these presents I have the honor to communicate to Your Excellency that I have appointed Mr. Klishko, Counsellor of this Embassy, to take over the buildings and the keys thereof, belonging to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. I should, therefore, very much appreciate it, Monsieur le Ministre, if you would be good enough to inform thereof the Netherlands Charge d'Affaires, that he might take immediate steps to effect the act of handing over the Embassy.

"At the same time, I beg to inform Your Excellency that I consider that this handing over is being effected in view of the fact that the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics is the owner of the buildings of the former Russian Legation.

"As regards the other considerations laid down in the Note of His Excellency the Japanese Minister under date of 18th inst., I feel it is my duty to state that I cannot fully endorse all the said considerations, but that inasmuch as a co-ordination of viewpoints preliminary to the handing over of the Embassy would be in contradiction with the position of the Soviet Government, which I had the opportunity to expound exhaustively in my conversation with the American Minister, Mr. Schurman, on July 24 of this year, I may, however, express my firm belief that the existing differences will not prevent to establish a modus vivendi between the Soviet Embassy and the Legations situated in the Diplomatic Quarter.

"I avail myself of this opportunity etc. (signed) L. Karakhan."

From Russian sources it is learned that, after a meeting between the Netherlands Charge d'Affaires and Mr. Klishko had taken place, Sir Ronald Macleay informed Mr. Klishko that the building and keys of the Russian Legation could not actually be handed over until formal consent had been given by all the other Protocol Powers.

circular telegram. None of the Northern papers, foreign or Chinese, have hitherto mentioned the matter.

THE DECLARATION

Below is a translation of Chang Tso-lin's circular telegram made public here on Sunday by the Lunghua authorities:

"Our people have been suffering from military oppression for a long time. In recent years, nine homes out of every ten in Szechuen, Hunan, Kwangsi and Kwangtung have been picked bare; and, in addition, drought and flood have affected more than 10 provinces in which starving persons in a very pitiful plight are found everywhere. Whoever is least humanly inclined will do all he can to show them compassion and give them relief.

"Yet Tsao Kun and Wu Pei-fu, with their minds perverted, are more than ever bent upon showing their ferocious fangs. Not only have they shown no sympathy towards the provinces so affected but they are even afflicting the unaffected regions with military calamities. They are deaf to appeals from the scholar and the gentry and indifferent to the warnings and protests of the Diplomatic Corps. What sort of a heart do they possess, it is painful to ask?

"When the storm was brewing, I, Tso-lin, repeatedly tendered to them my loyal advice, persuading them to regard the people's welfare as of paramount importance. Their reply was replete with peaceful sentiments. I was led to believe the sincerity of their utterance; but hardly has the ink dried than fighting broke out.

"I have just received a circular telegram from the Commander-in-Chief Lu of Hangchow dated the 3rd instant, in which the man who fired the first shot was clearly indicated. Hence, the inadvisability of delaying our punitive expedition.

"The wicked deeds done by Tsao and Wu have accumulated mountain-high, too numerous to count. To mention a few of their principal crimes, I shall point out the bribing of the M. P.'s in order to steal the highest position; the keeping of the "paws and teeth" in order to crush the neighboring provinces; Peking destroys what the people hope to set up, namely, the self-government system; Peking tramples upon what the whole nation is praying to secure viz: peace. Further, while they blamed others for settling the Austrian Loan, they themselves have felt no scruple in recognising the German bonds.

"While even foreigners are expecting us to develop our education, they are trying to appropriate the remitted Boxer Indemnity for their own ends. They have sold our country and sacrified our rights and indulged in military conquests. For all such crimes, they have long been men regarded as intolerable by the whole world. They have been allowed some respite only because of the intensity of the people's distress which made us refrain from causing further devastation to our territory.

"Since public opinion is unanimously opposed to the continuation of such a wicked regime, I, Tso-lin, for the sake of our nation and our people, feel it my bounden duty to lead my army and swear to rid the country of the people's traitors thereby removing the obstacle to our national peace, and revive the vitality of our people. Not only while those of our own party approve of my action, but also those who have been turned down by them will wake up and join us. Nobody will be disturbed when and where my Army happen to be. My only object is to kill the chief offenders, absolutely leaving all the others unmolested. Let the Sun in Heaven witness this utterance of mine."

COOLIE STEALS VALUABLES, SETS FIRE TO HOUSE

Trick Of Fate And Fidelity Of House-Boy Expose Theft And Arson

On a double charge of theft and arson, a coolie who had been employed in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Oster, 49 Avenue Dubail, was sentenced to five years' imprisonment yesterday in the French Mixed Court. The crime was unique in local police records, and it was only in consideration of the coolie's youth that his punishment was not made more severe by the Court.

Last Thursday evening, while Mr. and Mrs. Oster were both out, the coolie, according to evidence presented to the Court, stole up to the bedroom of the house. A house-boy, a cook and an amah were in the house at the time, but were in the servants' quarters below.

Losing little time, the coolie gathered together $366 in notes, a Browning revolver, and a quantity of jewelry, including a gold watch and two diamond rings. Then he set fire to the bed and other furniture in the room in order to cover the traces of his crime, and made a speedy getaway.

It was through a queer freak of chance that the entire house was not burned down. There had been an electric call-bell over the bed. As the bed burned, the insulation on the bell cord caught fire, and with the insulation burned off, a connection was formed and the bell started ringing violently in the servants' quarters. The boy answered and on seeing the flames called to the amah and cook to assist him. Forming a bucket brigade they managed to extinguish the fire, although the bed was completely destroyed and much of the furniture burned.

Police of the French Concession investigated and arrested the coolie at his home. There they recovered all of the stolen property except one watch.

a portion of the Chihli 23rd Division under the command of General Wang Chen-ping, left Machang yesterday for the region of Shanhaikwan.

Vice-Admiral Liu Yung-chien, Counsellor of the Ministry of the Navy, has gone to Loyang to report on the naval situation. Admiral Liu recently returned from a tour of the Chinese naval station in the South.

The Peking Chinese press is daily giving more space to the attitude of Marshal Chang Tso-lin. The general opinion seems to be that Marshal Chang will prepare for war with the Chihli faction and probably make some demonstration meanwhile waiting to see whether or not General Lu Yung-hsiang can hold out against Marshal Chi. Some of the papers believe that Marshal Tuan will at once go to the South East, in the event of General Lu's forces occupying Nanking, and establish an independent Chekiang-Kiangsu Government, but all are agreed that neither Marshal Tuan nor Marshal Chang will precipitate a trial of strength in the event of General Lu being defeated. Notwithstanding the generally accepted fact that Marshal Wu is fully identified with the attack on General Lu Yung-hsiang, the Chinese papers still doubt whether Marshal Chi and his northern reinforcements can subdue the Chekiang armies.

Kiangsu Plan As So Far Developed Is Somewhat Similar; Beginning Of Fight On Huangtu-Liuho Line Quite Natural In View Of Objective

BY TALBOT PATRICK

Huangtu, Sept. 8, 5 p.m.—After hot fighting along this sector yesterday from Kiating to Chingpu, the situation was comparatively quiet today until I set out in search of local firing line color.

Every time I started to show up anywhere near the front there were outbursts of firing and I became distinctly unpopular among the hitherto hospitable gentry of Chekiang and those once of Fukien. All because a white suit topped by a white helmet made a target which drew the eyes of riflemen and machine gunners a mile away.

If I had known of a supply of nice, imported foreign dirt, I would have rolled in it until an inconspicuous color had been attained. As it was, I believe I may hold the suit responsible for a discreet retirement which resulted in a meeting with General Chwang Tse-ping and some valuable tactical information from a member of his staff.

So here goes for a bit of general discussion of the whole front from the tactical viewpoint, warning for those who like the picturesque side of the war to skip some several paragraphs.

Chekiang troops today held the general line from Liuho through Kiating, Huangtu and Chingpu to the shores of the small Lake Tienshan east of Taihu Lake which is familiar to those who have followed the war news.

Between this sector and the east side of Taihu is a region cut up with small lakes and low country. Chekiang troops have held in this district the town of Wuchiang on the Grand Canal, about ten miles south of Soochow, ever since the beginning of the war. There have been no reports of fighting in this whole region with the exception of an unconfirmed rumor three days ago that a skirmishing party had entered a village six miles south of Soochow.

EASILY DEFENDED

I believe it fairly safe to predict that there won't be any heavy fighting in this section because the narrow passes between lakes can be easily defended by a small body against a far stronger body of attackers.

West of Taihu there is a narrow strip where fighting is reported to have been heavy both Sunday and today. In this area the Chekiang troops are carrying the fight to the Kiangsu men and they have been said to be steadily advancing. My informant predicted that the Chekiang army would seize Ishing tomororw. They will then be so far north as to constitute a distinct threat of cutting the railway line at Changchow and of cutting off the whole left wing and center of the Kiangsu army from any communication with Nanking except by water and the strip of land between Changchow and the Yangtsze Kiang.

West of the strip where this fighting is on we have the province of Anhui, a province whose sympathies are with Kiangsu but whose forces are too weak to act other than on the defensive. So far there has been no fighting on the Anhui border line except where the extreme flanks of the present fighting forces are at right angles to it. Anhui troops hape not been engaged at all. We may take it for granted that the Chekiang army won't try to head through Anhui or even for some distance parallel with its border toward Nanking; we cannot rule out the possibility that Anhui, reinforced, might be persuaded by heavy pressure to make at least enough semblance of an advance against Hangchow to draw defence troops to this sector from others where they might be needed.

Boiled down, we can say that Chekiang is merely holding all her line on the right flank and center while she attacks heavily on the left, possibly on the old maxim that the best defense is an offensive. In addition, she must be ready to protect her extreme left.

The Kiangsu plan as so far developed is somewhat similar, in that it is the left wing of the Kiangsu army which has done the heaviest attacking. The fight began at Huangtu and spread to Liuho; with the exception of one day's extension of the battle front to Chingpu, the Kiangsu attack has continued on the Huangtu-Liuho line.

To begin the attack on this line was natural, since the territory immediately about Shanghai was that on which General Chih had his heart set. Whether the attack will be continued on this sector and made even more heavy than the pushes which have hitherto failed to break through the Chekiang defense is a question seriously to be debated. It is certain that the northern forces will have to put up a far stronger fight in the Ishing sector than they have for two days if they don't want to run big risks of getting it badly between the neck and solar plexus.

I am also inclined to believe that the Chekiang troops could withdraw from Liuho as far down the river as Woosung and even up the Woosung railroad line without materially damaging their position. They would extend their front, of course, which is something generally inadvisable for troops fighting against greater numbers.

GOOD COMMUNICATIONS

On the other hand, the Kiangsu army, because on the outside of the arc, would have an even longer front. And where the Kiangsu troops would find difficulties of transportation increased, even if able to maintain absolute control of the Yangtsze, the Chekiang army still could use three main lines of communication for quick transport of troops, guns and supplies to danger points, the Shanghai-Woosung railroad (with automobile road), the 'Liuho motor road and the Shanghai-Nanking railway line to Huangtu or any place this side of there.

Along the sector on either side of Huangtu, the Chekiang army today strengthened itself to continue an avowed policy of merely holding the line. (It will be remembered that every Chekiang attack on this line has been a counter-attack merely to regain ground grudgingly yielded.)

Kiangsu losses in attacks on this sector are known to have been heavy and today's disposition was intended to begin a development of this section into a semi-permanent line, heavily armed with artillery in strongly entrenchod positions. On such a line a small force of infantry with heavy artillery backing should be able to hold its own against an attack by much larger numbers. It is easy to see that such dispositions are of the field fortress type, not made with a view to advances in the near future.

In line with these dispositions, 500 artillerymen were sent to this sector this morning, while 500 infantrymen who reached Shanghai in their company were sent on to strengthen the defenders at Liuho where fighting is at times at such close quarters that the proportion of defenders to attackers must be more even than up here. This morning, also, a hundred infantrymen from Nanziang were sent to Shanghai to be shifted to Liuho. As the defense line is better entrenched in this sector, it is possible that more infantry will be sent to Liuho by rail. A large number, possibly more than a thousand, are believed to have been moved by canal and across country in that direction from Kiating.

AERIAL BOMBS

Today I examined one of the three aerial bombs which were dropped near Nanziang last week, the one which missed a Red Cross dressing station by less than a hundred yards and landed in a location favored by the geomancers, to judge by the number of grave mounds about, and probably for that reason chosen for the temporary resting places of a number of dead soldiers in new coffins.

The bomb had an oval chamber about three feet long and from one end steels fins or rudders about two feet long protruded in the shape of a cross whose arms were four or five inches wide on either side of the joining point. On one fin was painted "F. Tosi" and opposite it a number in the tens of thousands. The charge in the bomb had apparently deteriorated, as the wall of the chamber was fractured only in one small part and the area of earth thrown up was only about four feet across. Soldiers were giving the thing a wide berth, however, and used everything but force to prevent me from scraping dirt away from it.

Coolies carrying the coffins from that clearing in the bamboo clump which I mentioned in my last dispatch, the place where bodies were assembled from various directions and to which a Sunday shipment of coffins was brought to be filled, pass on the way to the rapidly growing cemetery through a cotton field whose bolls are already bursting with white. Each bearer had taken two bolls to stuff in his nostrils.

Among the dead are two Red Cross officers killed early Sunday morning in a railroad accident between Hugnatu and Nanzing. They were riding in a freight car loaded with ammunition boxes, the last one in a train which stopped about a mile short of Huangtu. Another train came up from the rear, all trains running without lights, and crashed into the rear end of the first train.

A pile of boxes tumbled over upon the officers, killing both.

NOT IN UNIFORM?

There has been a rumor that some of the Kiangsu soldiers on the firing line are not in uniform, but it may be due to the presence of coolies such as are used by the Chekiang troops to carry ammunition and food and also as stretcher bearers.

The treatment of the country people by the Chekiang soldiers is reflected in the presence of many sellers of fresh vegetables, duck eggs, watermelon seeds and other delicacies around Nanziang station. One chap with an eye to trade and disregard for danger camped on Huangtu station platform with cartons of cigarettes When stray bullets came with too great frequency he merely moved a trifle out of the line of direct fire.

The fatness of the soldiers' pocketbooks is attested by empty boxes strewn here and there at some distance from the railroad as well as close to it and smashing numbers of full and empty bottles. Samshu receives some consideration, but it is Hennessy's Three Star Cognac which is the great favorite.

How Baby's Own Tablets Help The Little Ones.

Children are born to be laughing and happy. When they are peevish, irritable and almost always in tears the cause usually is to be found in the stomach or bowels—where most childish ailments arise.

If your own little one is thin, pallid, and failing to thrive as well as you would like, you will be wise to follow the example of thousands of other parents, and give the child Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy. These pleasant little lozenges have no medicine taste, and may be eaten like sweets, or crush easily to a tasteless powder. They are guaranteed entirely from opiates or narcotics and are absolutely harmless even to the youngest infant.

Mr. M. Cadotte, of Makemik, Quebec, writes:—"Baby's Own Tablets are the best remedy in the world for little ones. My baby suffered terribly from indigestion and vomiting but the Tablets soon set her right and now she is in perfect health."

Baby's Own Tablets banish constipation, colic and indigestion, check diarrhoea, break up colds and simple fever, alleviate teething pains, expel worms, soothing sleep in a perfectly natural way. Chemists sell them, or post free, 60 cents the vial, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

Jewish Club 'Ahduth' Plans A Drive For Spacious Premises

At an extraordinary general meeting of the above Club held recently, it was decided that the premises of the Club now in use were getting too inadequate for its increasing membership and for the many demands made upon the Club rooms, and therefore, new and larger premises were to be obtained. The Committee in charge have taken advantage of the proposed change to secure not only much larger and attractive quarters, but quarters more centrally located as well, and the new Club bids well to be one of the handiest and coziest Clubs in Shanghai.

In addition to spacious lobbies, lounge rooms and reception rooms, the Club is making provision for a dance and concert hall, with stage for theatrical performances; buffet, two dining rooms with private rooms for parties, library, reading room, banquet and lecture hall, card and Majong rooms, conference hall for meetings, etc. On their spacious attic-floor will be room for the proposed gymnasium, with showers, bath rooms, etc., as well as five living rooms. Altogether no pains are being spared to make the new Club fully equipped in every respect, as a fitting center for all Jewish activities. Charitable and cultural organisations will be given the opportunity of using the Club as its headquarters for the carrying out of business, etc. The Club membership itself will be divided up into various "circles" for the purpose of developing the cultural, artistic, social and educational side of life, each in charge of a committee that will conduct all activities and arrange interesting programs all through the year. The Club's tennis courts will be kept up as before, and the fine ballroom that is to be out in will leave little to be desired in that direction.

To finance the above project, it is proposed to raise the sum of Tls. 15,000, to be added to the funds now in the hands of the Club. This sum will be raised by means of debentures, of Tls. 50 each, bearing interest at 6 percent per annum. These bonds are redeemable within five years, commencing from January, 1926, twice yearly. The regular income of the Club affords full provision for the semi-annual payment of the debentures. By reason of the demand that has existed for so many years for a well equipped and conveniently located center for Jewish activities, it is believed that the full amount will be raised in a short while. Many new members are expected to come in as a result of the expansion. It may be mentioned that about 20 percent of its membership is non-Jewish, in the form of associate members. With the central location that the new premises will enjoy and its increased conveniences and advantages, it is reasonable to expect that the list of associates will be very much increased.

Armed Robbers Busy Over The Week-End

Two armed robberies were reported to Settlement police over the week-end.

At 7:10 p.m. on Sunday, four men, armed with pistols, entered an exchange shop at 2503-4 East Seward Road, and, after intimidating the four shop assistants, escaped with $27.21 in cash. No shots were fired. No arrests have been made as yet.

At 2:30 o'clock Monday morning, police of the Yangtszepoo station were notified that a robbery had been committed in a Chinese country house off Pingliang Road. Five men, one of whom was said to have been armed with a pistol, entered the house, and, after holding up the occupants, escaped with $20 worth of jewelry and clothing.

Enrollment of Aliens for Immigration Visas.

The American Consulate-General desires to enroll all aliens wishing to enter the United States as immigrants. In cases where it is possible to issue visas, these will be issued in the order of enrollment, making exceptions in favor of priority classes as established by regulations.

Persons who belong to the non-immigrant and non-quota classes, may apply for visas as heretofore without enrolling under the quotas. Full particulars as to the non-immigrant and non-quota classes will be furnished to inquirers at the Passport Office of this Consulate-General.

Preference in granting visas under the quotas will be given to skilled agriculturists and to close relatives of American citizens for whom special preference authorisation has been received from the Department of State.

All persons claiming to belong to non-immigrant, non-quota, or preference classes, should be in possession of documentary evidence thereof when calling at the Consulate-General.

The Russian quota is not sufficiently large to cover any persons of Russian birth excepting those who belong to the following priority classes.—Close relatives of American citizens, agriculturists and holders of visas issued in the last fiscal year, which could not be used account of exhaustion of the Russian quota. Persons of Russian birth who cannot furnish evidence that they belong to one of these priority classes need not apply for enrollment.

Increase in Prices of Meats

Resolution Passed By Butchers In Foreign Settlement And French Concession.

The supply of beef and mutton has its source from different interior places. The present conflict between Kiangsu and Chekiang troops has caused a stoppage to this source and the price of what is obtainable has soared up so high that we would be in face of very serious financial loss if we were to charge the same rate for any supply.

The attention of our patrons are therefore called to the increase of prices of beef and mutton which is to be in force from the 11th September. In order to avoid loss on the part of suppliers, the prices of the above-mentioned meats are to be increased by Forty percent (40%) of their original prices.

Chemical Exports From America Set Year's Record

New York—Exports of chemicals and allied products for the month of May, 1924, had an aggregate value of $12,461,819, the record to date for the year, according to an analysis by the Chemical Division of the Department of Commerce. This total represented a loss of 7 percent from the previous May, but a gain of 17 percent over April, 1924 and 6 percent over May, 1922. Of the main branches which disclosed advances in May of the current year as compared with last year, the 26 percent increase in naval stores, gums, and rosins was the mot noteworthy although the minor groups, crude drugs, essential oils, medicinal and pharmaceutical preparations and perfumery and toilet preparations actually showed higher percentages. Foreign sales of industrial chemicals, coal-tar chemicals, pigments paints and varnishes, and explosives were all less than last year.

The 26 percent advance in the exports of naval stores, gums and rosins from Y.1,708,640 in May 1923, to Y.2,152,247 in May, 1924, was largely due to the increased activity of spirits of turpentine, when sales once more approached the average monthly figure of 1923 and surpassed the 1922 average; 1,196,051 gallons worth Y1,058,429 were shipped abroad in May, 1924. Sales of wood turpentine and turpentine substitutes were also large during this month.

LESS PIGMENTS SHIPPED

The $1,259,416 worth of pigments, paints and varnishes exported in the month under discussion was 14 percent below the May, 1923, figures but above the preceding month. Less quantities of chemical pigments, including bone, carbon and lamp black and varnishes were dispatched to foreign countries during this May than last May.

Fertilizer and fertilizer materials improved 20 percent in quantity from 105,577 tons in May, 1923, to 126,271 tons in May, 1924, but declined 36 percent in value from $2,869,328 to $1,800,857. Most significant in this group was the drop in exports of sulphate of ammonia, when only about one quarter as much was shipped in the current May as in last May, when, however, the figure attained was high.

In May, 1924, the amounts of explosives ($151,617, 1,185,139 pounds) that were shipped out of the United States were noticeably smaller than in May, 1923, and than in any other month of the current year.

On the other hand, favorable progress was made in the foreign demand for American crude drugs and for medicinal and pharmaceutical preparations during the period under discussion when $170,167 worth (479,736 pounds) of the former and $1,751,503 worth of the latter left this country.

ESSENTIAL OILS SALES KEEP UP

In line with the betterment in demand for perfumery and toilet preparations and medicinals and pharmaceuticals, followed the continued progress as evidenced throughout the current year in foreign sales of essential oils, when the figure of $137,472 (313,616 pounds) was attained.

Noticeable among the losses was the 33 percent drop in quantities and 24 percent in values of sodas and sodium compounds, 26,452,510 pounds, valued at $729,935 having been exported in this month.

Less sulphur, but 41,495 tons worth $635,389, was shipped to foreign countries this year than last.

During May, 1924 exports of coal tar products fell 7 percent from $1,262,639 in May, 1923, to $1,177,428 in May, 1924. After the very low figure that was reached in the preceding month of April it was gratifying to note the improvement made in May. Rather exceptionally big shipments (23,538,244 pounds, valued at $704,157) of benzol were made in the current May. More aniline oil and salts also were exported during this period for some time past, while the exports of coal-tar colors, dyes, and stains continued to be under the previous figures of this year and last.

American Cargoes In Demand By Japan

Contracts for carrying American lumber and wheat from Pacific ports to Australia and American Atlantic ports, made between the Kokusai Kisen Kaisha and foreign firms in Seattle, are attracting Japanese shipowners who intend to launch oversea freight services. For some months past large Japanese shipowners having many oversea steamers came in for shares on the nearsea and coasting trades in lumber shipments but they found that business was not so satisfactory as they expected.

They are now intending to revert to their original service and are looking for suitable shippers or charterers. In such circumstances, the recent shipment contracts entered into between the Kokusai K. K. and foreign shippers have favorably stimulated general shipowners aiming at expoiting oversea trade again. Moreover, the recent London Conference is expected to give stimulus to the reanimation of shipping trade on the Orient-European as well as Trans-Atlantic services, to which shipowners are preparing to dispatch their ships at the first opportunity. The prevailing steamer freight from American Pacific ports to Europe is quoted at 32s. 6d. and the rate on Australian wheat to Europe quoted at 40s. 6d. The rate on lumber from American Pacific ports to Atlantic ports is quoted at $12. The Kokusai Kisen Kaisha has made preparations for the dispatch of seven of its large steamers, all 11,000 tons deadweight, for American Pacific ports.

The Port Said Maru is to carry 7,000 tons of wheat from North American Pacific ports to Europe at 32½ shillings in September; the Brazil Maru 7,000 tons of wheat from Seattle to Europe at a similar rate in September; the Yuri Maru to carry a full cargo of lumber from America to Australia in September at $12; the Yae Maru, the Etna Maru, the Yone Maru and the Clyde Maru to carry full cargoes from Seattle and Portland to American Atlantic ports. Some of these steamers will on their arrival in New York, Norfolk and other Atlantic ports take up the Trans-Atlantic service for European ports, since they are only trip-chartered.

BLUE FUNNEL CO. DECIDE TO HAVE A NEW HECTOR

Name Always Has Had Fine Associations With Co.'s Services

The decision of the Blue Funnel Line to name their new Eastern steamer Hector is a good one, says the Journal of Commerce, for the name has always had fine associations with the company's services, and, curiously enough, the ships that have borne it have always been identical with the contemporary Sarpedons. The first of the series was built in 1871, when the company was still very young, although it had grown out of the state of impecunfosity which made the first Alfred Holt decide the color of his funnel by the drum of paint which he happened to find on board the first ship he bought. She was built by Alexander Leslie and Co., of Hebburn, an iron single-screw ship of 1,950 tons register, propelled by tandem compound engines at a very fair speed. She was one of the ships specially designed for the changed conditions of the Eastern trade brought about by the opening of the Suez Canal. She was lost in trying to pass up the ill-marked channel into Amoy after dark and broke up before salvage appliances could be got to the spot. It is rather interesting to note that this accident happened in 1875, and it was only in the previous year that Mr. Holt, after paying heavy insurance premiums on his ships for ten years, and having extraordinarily good luck, decided that he would not continue any longer, and accordingly established a sinking fund. Within twelve months the Hector, Sarpedon, and Orestes were lost, but he did not let this deter him, and continued the policy, reaping great profit from it in the long run.

The second ship of the name was built at the same yard in 1877, and was only a slight improvement in various particulars on her predecessor, the main details being the same. She had a strikingly successful career in the service of the company, practically always on the Eastern run, and it was not until the Japanese were buying all the tonnage they could get hold of for the war with China in 1894 that she was transferred to them as the Moji Maru. The third ship of the name is the best known, and was built by Workman, Clark and Co., of Belfast, in 1895. She was a steel screw ship of 4,660 tons, and was one of the first of a long series of similar vessels which were known all over the globe. In one or two particulars she attracted attention by features which were later embodied in all the Blue Funnel ships—remarkably complete cargo-handling equipment and high speed, for instance. She did 13½ knots in bad weather when she was tried, which for a ship of her type was distinctly good, and her owners never had reason to regret their idea. In 1909 she was transferred to the Australian run, and was still doing good work there when the Admiralty took her up in 1915. She did excellent service before she was returned to her owners in 1919, and they ran her to the Far East and Australia. She was later sold to German scrappers, and last July was towed across to Wilhelmshaven by the Dutch tug Schelde.

Coolies Or Farmers?

A FEW DAYS AGO an elitorial appeared in these columns of The China Press under the heading of "And the Coolie Supplies the Motive Power for it All," which referred to the impressment and conscription of coolies in the present war and to the fact that the average Chinese official or military officer looks upon the coolie as a commodity rather than as a human being. The fact that the Chinese Red Cross is now doing such creditable work in relief to the wounded on both sides of the present fight, indicates that conditions in this respect are rapidly changing in China. However that isn't the reason for these paragraphs which are inspired by a letter from Mr. Kwok Bew, managing director of the Wing on Company of Shanghai, referring to our previous editorial and pointing out to us that there is a very clear distinction between "coolie" and farm laborer. Mr. Kwok's letter in part follows:—

"I have read your editorial of September 5 entitled, 'And The Coolie Supplies The Motive Power For It All.' Your sympathy with the lower classes of China is naturally satisfactory to all Chinese, but your assumption that all over-seas Chinese were coolies is not based upon fact, in spite of the informaton you may have obtained from the learned professor in one of China's universities. To understand social and economic conditions in China, one has to study Chinese life, particularly the life of the Chinese farmer. The farmer is not a coolie. He is not a hired laborer. He is an owner of land either individually or on a co-operative basis with other members of his tribe.

"In Kwangtung when there was a surplus in the village, the sons went to other parts, to find wealth, just as they do in other countries. Such immigrants did not go to the new countries penniless in slave-ships but were financed by their families and even by contributions from their entire tribe. They went to the South Sea Islands, Straits, Siam, Austrlia,. New Zealand, Hawaii and the Philippines. They kept their contacts with their families and their former associates, and as they found opportunities for business they usually established firms in which family interest predominated, and in the course of their travels obtained experience and knowledge of Western methods, but they invariably returned to their own province, because coming from good families they preferred not to break the ancient tribunal ties. This of course is usual in China as it is in other countries.

"The assumption that all the over-seas Chinese or a disproportionate part of them are coarse, ignorant coolies is no truer than that immigrants to your own country from Europe are of the same type, or that all foreigners coming to China are men who cannot earn livings in their own country."

Webster's dictionary gives the following definition of the word "coolie:" Coolie or cooly—(Hind. Quali) Among Europeans in India and China and sometimes Japan, a native unskilled hired laborer, or a porter or carrier: also elsewhere, a cheap laborer transported from the East Indies, China or Japan."

The Encyclopaedia Brittanica devotes several columns to the word, "Coolie," but the first paragraph will serve as explanation of that authority's version of the subject.

"A term generally supplied to Asiatic laborers belonging to the unskilled class as opposed to the artisan, and employed in a special sense to designate those natives of India and China who leave their country under contract of service to work as laborers abroad."

Naturally we regret that we failed to make a distinction between "coolie" and "farm-laborer" but as our correspondent may note the authorities, both American English, who have defined the word have also failed to make a distinction. We do not agree however with the implication conveyed in Mr. Kwok's letter that because a man is a coolie, that this necessarily means that his descendents always remain in this same class. "Once a coolie, always a coolie," may apply in certain overcrowded parts of China where opportunities for advancement are not available, but we imagine that where the children of members of the bottom or laborer classes have educational opportunities, that they respond just as they respond in other countries such as America or Europe. As a matter of fact a well-known American missionary of many years' experience in China once told the writer of a case where a child, the son of a beggar woman was picked up and placed in a mission school and in the course of time became a high official in the land. There probably have been many experiences of this kind in China since the coming of mission schools and we would like to hear from some of our readers on the point raised by Mr. Kwok.

The Trend Towards Peace

WHILE the storm clouds seem to be gathering apace in China, and what was first spoken slightingly of as a boundary dispute seems to be adopting the dimensions of a very much greater struggle, it is interesting to note the endeavors that are being made towards the establishment of an enduring peace in other parts of the world. The London agreement has been accepted by Germany, and the attention of the diplomats of Europe has been centred on the assembly of the League of Nations at which determined efforts are being made to make the League of real service in the prevention as far as possible of future outbreaks of hostilities. The draft treaty providing for mutual assistance in cases of aggression has been rejected, and it is apparent that in so rejecting it, Mr. Ramsay Macdonald had the support of his colleagues representing the British Empire. On the other hand the disarmament resolution was unanimously adopted by the League. The declarations of the various governments concerned are held by the opinion of the League as expressed in the resolution, to contain a basis for understanding tending to lead to the establishment of lasting peace.

The importance of the resoultion, phrased as it is in somewhat obscure language, at least indicates the adoption of the principle of arbitration for the settlement of disputes between States in lieu of resort to warfare. We consider this infinitely more valuable than the provision for the consideration of the reduction of armaments. The Washington Conference, if it did nothing else, clearly proved that a reduction of armaments only tended to establish, so far as naval strength is concerned, a new standard of strength bearing an intimate relation to the status quo ante. The extension of the principle might be fraught with this danger, that having regard solely to the needs of a people, and their importance in the world, they might have applied to them a standard which would make them powerful enough to defy the wishes of the League, regarding submission to arbitration, with some prospect of success. In the sense, however, that a hard and fast limitation would have the effect of abolishing that suicidal competition in armaments which marked the diplomatic history of the last fifty years, even a resolution for the reduction of armaments might serve humanity well. But this is rather on account of the diversion of the money that would otherwise be spent in martial preparation, into more peaceable and economically valuable channels. So also it might be said of the pact for mutual assistance, that it tends again to establish a balance of power—a balance against any who might contemplate aggression and we have learned that while such a balance might prove of assistance in cases of actual outbreak, it can hardly be said that such formations in the past have been conducive of peace.

It is impossible, therefore, to regard the further provision in the resolution providing for the consideration of possible amendments to the provisions relating to an International Court, with anything but the highest satisfaction. Obviously one of the main tasks before the League is the drafting of provisions which would make the Court an efficient tribunal before which issues between states might be decided, and the obtaining of greater precision, whereby the International Court would be more generally accepted for the ultimate strengthening of the solidarity and security of the nations of the world. It is becoming more and more apparent every year, that the tragic waste of life in the pursuit of a purely fortuitious and ofttimes fictitious justice is being realised in all its foolishness. And the first step towards the prevention of great wars is the establishment of a Court upon lines which is generally acceptable. Then and only then will it become necessary to consider the sanction to be applied to recalcitrant states who will not accept the rulings of such a Court, and it is conceivable that once there has been a general acceptance of the principle of such a Court, and the manner of its application, the question of the enforcement of its decisions will be of secondary importance.

THE ART OF HAPPY MEMORY

The most significant step a mind takes is that wherein it realizes that it can control its own operation; when it learns that it can command those things in itself commonly considered automatic.

And in nothing does this appear with such striking results to happiness as in the discovery of one's power to manage his memory.

Most people think they remembr what they remember, and that is all there is to it. But it is possible to make memory a servant, and restrain its mastery.

In Italy a rare motto was found by Hazlitt upon a sun-dial: Horas non numero nisi serenas—"I mark only the shining hours."

The man whose increase of contentment is most assured, as he grows older, is the one who has discovered how to enjoy his past.

To many of us the past is always sad. We turn from it with impatience. "Man never is, but always to be, blest." Naturally this habit of mind sees in the ever-shortening future nothing but tragedy. Accept, then, these hints on how to handle your past.

First, whatever it is, has been; it has brought you here. Your condition may not be all your impudent claims on the universe demand, but it might be worse. Better men than you are in jail, are stricken with unceasing pain. Better men than you have been hanged.

Out of the worst experiences you have had you may reap satisfaction. The dangers, sicknesses, accidents, and losses—one who understands the art of living finds in the recalling of even these a certain thankfulness. Is there not pleasure in recounting your narrow escape?

You have had your pangs and pains; but the wise man knows that out of these have come his richest crops of understanding. Life has its stripes; but they are its healing.

The past is largely made by the present. If you are now soured and disappointed you are quite hopeless, for your diseased memory will go over your past and pick out from it only miserable things. But if you have adjusted yourself, if with a courageous heart, you are trying to make the best of conditions as they are, your memory will aid you, and bring you stores of happy incidents.

Your past is the strongest asset of your present judgment. It is your best teacher. Only from it do you learn whatever shrewdness you have in dealing with events.

Learn to forgive yourself, not in folly, but in a sane charity. The things you did wrong, the failures and mistakes, consider them as part of that tutelage of destiny that goes toward your present equipment.

What has happened to you has happened to all men. The question is, will you cull from it flowers or thorns?

"Everything considered," says Renan, "there are few situations in the vast field of existence where the balance of debt and credit does not leave a little surplus of happiness.

We have crossed the years. We are here. We have escaped what perils! We have landed with what residue of wisdom and of hope!

DANGER TO THE PORT

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir,—In the war news today there appears an article stating that a railway bridge has been blown up by dynamite. To do this necessitates obtaining dynamite from somewhere, and where would the rival factors turn their attention to if not to the dynamite magazines which has been brought so forcibly into prominence by the local Press. It stands to reason that, should it become necessary, one side or the other will try to gain possession of the contents of the magazines, and what is going to happen when a horde of coolies, who are most likely to have been ignorant farmers impressed by the military, attempt to handle the dynamite, urged on by the soldiers with loaded rifles?

Do not the shipping companies realise that the distance from the magazine to the center of the channel is under 500 yards and that, should an explosion take place, the whole of the river bed would be completely changed, causing the whole of the shipping to be held up for an indefinite period. This would be the financial ruin for this port for many a long day to come, and it behoves the officials to take the necessary precautions to safeguard the magazines against any attempt to interfere with the contents.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir:—Being of a nationality usually credited with a high sense of humor and having had an experience of over a quarter of a century of very intimate association with Chinese of all grades, including that nebulous body which, for want of a better term, is called the Chinese Army, I have recently been highly amused at your electric headings in connection with the recent popular squeeze game called "War between Kiangsu and Chekiang! Your efforts at headings are not only ingenious but they are so wonderful it may be said they beat the band or even beat the gong—the only thing the Chinese Army has ever been able to beat.

Now I, your correspondent, being a bit of a humorist, would suggest as new headings something like the following:—"Great Clash of Super Bandits," "Knock Out Blow for Super-General Tufei," "The War of the Great Squeeze," "Exciting Contest between the Champion Runaways," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Tufei are Marching," "Making the Face or Squeezing the Enemy," "The Cinema Rehearsal of a Grand Parade from Six Rivers to Five Rivers," "Fill your pockets or get your soldiers killed and collar their pay."

If I may be excused for saying so, this is the Chinese war news in a nutshell. At the same time, many a true word is spoken in jest. Yet the real Chinese—"the lords of the soil"—suffer for the Super Militarists.

ENLIGHTENMENT WANTED

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Dear Sir:—I shall be very much obliged if one of the readers of THE CHINA PRESS will most kindly spare a few lines and let me know something about the following:

(1) The history of the Sino-Russians Conference.

(2) The Chinese Eastern Railway—its origin and its relation with the Chinese-Russian Bank.

(3) The Gold Franc Case.

(4) The Deutsche Bank and the German Bills.

(5) Brief biography of some famous people within these two decades.

(6) The London Conference and the Dawes Plan.

I only beg of you a few lines (a summary) only, because the newspaper tells me too long and too minutely day by day in splits and pieces.

Why Kill Our Allies?

BY GARRATT P. SERVISS

Many cats are afraid of insects. So are many dogs. I have seen a dog that world attack a cornered fighting wood-chuck as big as himself run away from a black beetle. The true and fearless foes of insects are birds. And they are friends to man in exact proportion to their destructiveness to the insect world.

Loving trees and shrubs and flowering plants and the glories of gardens, I am distressed when I see the multiplying number of cats that haunt the suburban neighborhood where I live, killing and driving away the birds—the birds who are the defenders of my plants and bushes and young trees. I do not know that the dogs kill any birds, but they, too, are a nuisance when they foregather in the neighborhood and forget the rules of decent behavior which no doubt they obey at home.

But worse than cats, and more objectionable than dogs, when the "shooting season" comes, are the men and boys who go about the country and the fields slaughtering the birds with guns. This is called "sport." I have known a man grow hot with indignation when a protest was made against the shooting of field birds.

The shooters were within thier rights; the season was legally open; for his part he wanted his boys to know how to use firearms; it was a part of the necessary education of all young citizens; it was a first step in military preparedness; as objectors, they were mere sentimentalists; what was the good of birds, anyway; hadn't the State governments and local authorities often encouraged the shooting of sparrows? Didn't the birds eat up the berries and rob the cornfields?

It did no good to point out to this man that the killing of a particular species of sparrows (the "English sparrow") had at times been authorised for the purpose of saving the native birds, whom they were driving away by their pugnacious and quarrelsome habits. It took him aback for a minute because he had not thought of that, but soon he was ready to maintain that all birds were alike marauders and proper game for shotguns.

Arguments are of no use against such practices, except with those who have never known the facts. They may be converted to better views of their duties as men and citizens when they learn the truth.

Now, one great all-embracing fact is that, just at the time when our native insect enemies are being reinforced, in numbers hitherto unheard of, by accessions of new hordes of strange species from abroad, and just when the battle to rescue our woodlands and our crops from what, in some places, seems nothing less than a threat of annihilation is going on at its hardest, the birds are becoming so scarce that from some regions they seem almost to have vanished.

We shoot down our best allies or allow them to be slaughtered by marauding cats when our need for their aid is the most pressing! Does it sound like "mere sentimentalism" to protest against such folly as that?

If we must have living marks to train the young generation in the use of guns, why not let them exercise their skill by stalking the feline stalkers of the robins and larks and thrushes and orioles and tanagers and finches, and by playing the more ennobling part of "Natty Bumppo" by saving innocence with a dead shot?

Another fact: I believe the statement to be hardly exaggerated that, but for the restraining influences mostly due to birds, insects would in two or three years of uninterrupted ravage "destroy all crops and all green things."

More Truth Than Poetry

BY S. E. KISER

An ancient churchyard, full of weeds,
The rows of graves are close together,
And such inscriptions as one reads
Have long defied the wind and weather;
How sixty years Obadiah Prime,
His wives—two of them—resting near him;
Each doubtless did much in her time
To worry and confound and cheer him.

Eliza was the first, as shown
By dates that still may be deciphered;
Dim letters on the crumbling stone
Say that her maiden name was Lyford.
She may, before she went, have had
Her doubts concerning Obadiah;
Perhaps it made her spirit sad
When he "looked sideways" at Maria.

And many times, we may surpose,
Maria, who had been a Bailey,
Heard how Eliza sweetly chose
To do her husband's bidding daily;
Eliza's cooking, and the care
She took to keep from being wasteful
Were subjects, may be, that her fair
Successor found somewhat distasteful.

Who knows how hard Eliza tried
To justify unfair suspicions?
And Obadiah may have sighed
While being held to hard conditions,
But for a hundred years these three
Have neither frowned nor harshly spoken,
And for ten million, probably,
The peace they have will be unbroken.

Our jealousies are quickly gone,
Our deepest sorows soon are buried;
The peace we get keeps lasting on,
So why insist on being worried?

DRESS

By Mary Marshall

The Turic Crepe Skirt is Worn with a Tunic Blouse to Form Charming Afternoon Costume

Every age has its tunic. And in no two periods of dress history does the word tunic have exactly the same meaning. If we liked we could correctly enough, no doubt, call any one of a number of present-day garments tunics. The present-day chemise has the essentials of a short tunic, and many a frock of the day is to all intents and purposes a long tunic. But usually when we speak of a tunic nowadays we refer to the so-called tunic blouse—the slip-on blouse that has a fairly long "peplum"—whether this tunic blouse is actually belted in at the waist or not.

Some of the newest of the tunic blouses are not belted in at all. Quite recently there have appeared in one of the smart shops newly imported ecru batiste tunics—quite long and unbelted and, to be quite frank—of quite tubby contour. But they are smart and Paris likes them. Doubtless we shall follow suit.

The crepe de chine tunic blouse has assumed an important place in the summer wardrobes of many women. Worn over a crepe de chine skirt—or better still a costume slip—it is appropriate for many summer afternoon occasions.

A single bright red or bright green monogram or other motif is often the only adornment of the French white crepe tunic blouse, but for many Americans this is too severe. Sometimes varicolored embroidery forms border for sleeve edges, collar and the hem of the tunic, sometimes painted decorations give color, and sometimes color and decoration is achieved through the use of charming printed designs on white crepe.

The sketch shows a tunic blouse of printed bordered-white crepe—worn over a pleated crepe de chine skirt.

An interesting effect was produced by the young woman who chose for her bracelets, worn on the right hand, those which repeated the colors found in the embroidered border of the tunic.

Blouse and skirt combination. The white crepe de chine blouse shows a printed border in bright colors. The skirt is pleated.

PIN-ON STRAPS

Pin-on shoulder straps for slips and chemises and step-ins are sold in the shops. You can unpin them when your lingerie goes to the laundry and pin them on again. Of course, they sometimes need washing, too, and you can wash them separately. Also, when they lose their freshness and color you can replenish them.

TODAY'S GOOD RECIPE

Chocolate Souffle

Thicken four cups of boiling milk with two tablespoons each of flour and sugar rubbed smooth with a little cold milk, add a teaspoon of vanilla, and half a cake of bitter chocolate, grated. Cook until smoth and thick, stirring constanly, take from the fire, add the yolks of six eggs well-beaten, and when partially cool, fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Turn into a buttered baking-dish, sprinkle with powdered sugar, and bake for twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

INEXPENSIVE FURNITURE

If you keep your eyes open, you can often see some interesting piece of inexpensive furniture. Something really cheap that is nevertheless really quite desirable. One furniture store the other day was selling little end tables—those small and very useful tables to place at the end of a divan or chesterfield, or by the arm of the chair—for $5. They were made on good lines, and were attractively stained in a soft, dull brown that would harmonize with almost any other furniture.

Don't buy cheap furniture of ugly line unless you have to. But when you see something really attractive like these end tables, don't be scared off by the low price. Better a $5 table of good line and color than a $50 one that is ornate and showy.

Hair Line Precision

THERE are 1769 operations in the manufacture of Studebaker motor cars that must not vary more than one-thousandth of an inch; 564 more that must be exact to one-half thousandth of an inch!

Think for a moment what this means. A human hair is more than one-thousandth of an inch thick. So to say that hair line precision is demanded in making Studebaker cars is not an exaggeration.

And such precision is not without reward. Studebaker cars deliver finer, longer and more economical service as a result of it. And the Studebaker reputation—now grounded on 72 years' tradition—is constantly enhanced by the satisfaction that thousands of Studebaker cars are rendering to owners.

Foundations For Peace Well And Truly Laid At Geneva, Says MacDonald

British Premier Declares Names Of Herriot And Geneva Will Be Ever Associated With New World Era As Outcome Of Conference

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 6.—The Assembly of the League of Nations today unanimously adopted the disarmament resolution, regarding which Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and M. Herriot had previously had a long discussion.

The result was received with prolonged cheering.

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 6.—Mr. Ramsay MacDonald was present at the Assembly of the League of Nations during the debate on armaments, which the President, M. Motta, said he was anxious to conclude today.

The Maharajah of Bikanir voiced the ardent interest of the Princes of India in the securing of peace and justice. They associated themselves with the proposal concerning arbitration. He entirely concurred with Mr. MacDonald's rejection of the draft treaty of mutual assistance. It was imprudent to reduce armaments unless security were previously assured. The Maharajah, referring to the exceptional position of India and the complex problem of the frontier said that the reduction of a garrison would weaken the security of India.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Sept. 6.—M. Herriot's speech at Geneva yesterday is acclaimed by the press for its clearness as compared with the British Prime Minister's vagueness. The papers declare that M. Herriot dissipated the illusion that France would abandon the mutual assistance pact as promptly as she abandoned the Ruhr.

(Reuter's Service)

The British Prime Minister mounted the tribune immediately the reading of the resolution was finished.

In a brief, impassioned speech, Mr. MacDonald emphasised, with his hand beating the desk, the awful results of the Great War, and urged the Assembly to agree to the resolution, the nature of which he explained.

"We want to fill the gap," he declared, "by deciding exactly what are security, arbitration and disarmament, and provide for their realisation. A million precious lives have been sacrificed, and if this Assembly succeeds in making a new statute for the world it will be the greatest Assembly ever known. M. Herriot and myself have worked towards the same ends. We have used the same road and although we often started from opposite sides of the road we have always found ourselves eventually in the middle of the road." If the Assembly succeeded in carrying out the resolution, he said in conclusion, it would give the world "real, most sure security."

Mr. MacDonald was cheered to the echo as, with emotion and bowed head, he resumed his seat.

The French Premier then ascended the tribune. He said that it would be deplorable if the debate ended in a mere academic discussion. M. Herriot was convinced that the resolution was a great step towards the creation of a real living spirit of international solidarity. It possibly was not a perfect solution but it showed the desire and will of the Assembly to realise real progress towards an era of peace.

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 6.—Mr. Macdonald and M. Heriot have left for Paris. They were given a splendid send-off by a large crowd, including many delegates. Mr. Macdonald told the pressmen that he was satisfied with the results of his visit.

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 6.—A stirring scene was witnessed at the Assembly of the League of Nations this afternoon.

The British Delegation were convoked after the morning session and unanimously adopted the drafting of the armaments resolution, on which Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and M. Herriot subsequently had a long discussion in private.

M. Motta, the President of the Assembly, read the resolution to all the delegates in the names of Britain and France: "The Assembly, noting the declarations of the Governments represented, remarks with satisfaction that they contain the basis of an understanding tending to establish and secure peace, and decides:

(1) that, with a view to reconciling in new proposals divergencies of certain points of view, and, when agreement has been reached with a view to enabling the convocation as early as possible of an international armaments conference by the Legue, the Third Committee is requested to consider material dealing with security and the reduction of armaments, particularly observations of Governments on the draft treaty of mutual assistance, in pursuance of Resolution XIV of the Third Assembly, and other plans prepared and presented to the Secretariat since publication of the draf treaty, and to examine the obligations contained in the Covenant of the League in relation to guarantees of security that resort to arbitration and reduction of armaments may require;

(2) that the First Committee is requested, firstly, to consider, in view of possible amendments, Articles of the Covenant relating to the settlement of disputes; and, secondly, to examine within what limits the terms of Article XXXVI, paragraph 2, of the Statute establishe be rendered more precise and thereby facilitate more general acceptance of the clause and thus strengthen the solidarity and security of the nations of the world by settling by pacific means all disputes which may arise between States."

The resolution was unanimously adopted.

There was loud and prolonged cheering after the speeches of Mr MacDonald and M. Herriot.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 6.—The formation of European, American and other groups inside the League of Nations for dealing with purely local problems, is the most novel feature of a plan which has been awarded the prize of £1,000 in the British Section of the competition, arranged by the American Mr. Edward Fileno for the best essays on how to restore the peace and prosperity of Europe by international co-operation.

The prize-winner also favours the European Mutual Guarantee Treaty, or a similar pact, to which Great Britain and Ireland should adhere with the consent of the Dominions, who, however, would not participate.

A survey of other thirty-six prize-winning plans and essays of 4,700 British and Dominion competitors, shows that nearly half regard the League as the chief instrument of international co-operation. The majority urge the admission of Germany to the League, whild the Guarantee Pact is widely supported.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Sept. 7.—Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and M. Herriot arrived here this morning from Geneva. Mr. MacDonald immediately departed for London.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 7.—Mr. Ramsay MacDonald arrived here this evening. In an interview with Reuter's representative he stated that the foundations for world peace had been well and truly laid. Mr. MacDonald expressed the opinion that the names, Herriot and Geneva, would be ever associated with the new world era. M. Herriot had declared that for the first time. We had seriously envisaged practical measures to enforce and ensure peace and that, apart from the Commissioners' work of elaborating the schemes, all schools and universities must be taught that our countries' aim was peace and not war.

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Geneva, Sept. 6.—The League of Nations Assembly has unanimously adopted a resolution framed by Premier Ransay MacDonald of Great Britain and Premier Herriot of France summarising the results of the two days discussion of the questions of security and armaments.

The resolution aims at reconciliation of the devergient viewpoints and hastening the convocation of an international disarmament conference under the auspices of the League of Nations.

Unions Refuse To Suggest Inquiry

(Reuter's Service)

London, Spt. 6.—The Trade Union Congress, before concluding today, overwhelmingly rejected a resolution submitted by the Printing, Bookbinding and Paperworkers' Union referring to trade union differences on the subject of free trade, protection and Imperial preference and asking the General Council to approach the Labor Party with a view to establishing a joint committee to investigate industries separately and report to the next Congress.

Mr. Cook of the Miners' Federation said that the resolution was one of the most dangerous submitted to the Congress.

Mr. McNamara on behalf of textile workers of Lancashire opposed the resolution.

The Congress adopted a resolution affirming its determined opposition to compulsory arbitration.
